Just a 1 hour drive from the U.S. Border, the port city of Ensenada in the state of Baja California is experiencing an unprecedented social, economic and cultural rebirth achieving international recognition & becoming one of Mexico's top tourist destinations.

On the international arena, Ensenada has recently enjoyed media coverage particularly from American and European television shows, magazines & newspapers that feature the city's hospitality as well as its importance as an upcoming culinary destination with some of the most recognized restaurants in Mexico; this recognition comes highly backed by the wine country, where 90% of the Mexican wine is produced.

Ensenada also hosts a huge array of outdoor recreational activities visitors can enjoy while visiting; some of the most popular include: golf, off road racing, fishing, cycling, sailing, hiking, kayaking, sand surfing, ecotourism tours & many others.

Wine Country

The "Valle de Guadalupe" It's Mexico's equivalent to the Napa Valley it is composed of the Guadalupe and San Antonio de las Minas valleys & by the Santo Tomas and San Vicente valleys to the south. The climate conditions of the region are very similar to those Mediterranean climates which greatly favor the wine grapes harvest as well as their byproducts. Baja's wine country comprises over 200 wineries attributing to 90% of the wine production in Mexico, with 2.5 million crates of wine produced annually & over 900 thousand visitors per year.

The region has experienced an increase in popularity thanks to such celebrations which include a wide range of social activities such as outdoor concerts & world renowned restaurants.

Besides the harvest celebrations and the excellent wines; vineyards offer outdoor concerts, activities, guided tours to their facilities, wine tastings and food pairings; all this contributes to the region's popularity as a tourist destination.

Gastronomy

There's food on every corner of the city, something for every palate, from the famous seafood stands to fine dining in the valley. A mix of sea and land, juicy cuts of meat, classic fish or carne asada tacos and dishes that will enchant your taste buds from the moment you take the first bite! Even the pickiest palate is sure to love Ensenada's food scene.

Mexican Food Ensenada Style

Baja California has its own style of Mexican food. From the wines and gourmet food in the Guadalupe Valley to its many charming street stands all around the city, Ensenada's food has become one of the most interesting experts in the culinary scene not only in Mexico but in the rest of the world too. Such is the case of La Guerrerense, a traditional seafood stand that has now earned a spot in the upcoming Bourdain Market in New York where it will share space with some of the best world food thanks to its now iconic Ceviche tostadas and salsas.
